

DOLARNO'S LOVE LED TO FALL.

He Tried to Climb in
Mrs. Callejura's
Window.

TUMBLING TO THE GROUND.

Injured Man Says He Was Thrown from the Casement.

Mrs. Joanna Callejura dashed into the Elizabeth street police station to-day and said there was a man making trouble for her at her home, 119 Mulberry street. The woman is young and pretty. Policeman T. J. Murphy was sent to investigate.

In the rear yard of the tenement at the number given he found a man lying on the ground, semi-conscious and suffering from a compound fracture of the right arm and internal injuries. At Governor House he revived and said the woman had thrown him from her second-story window. She was arrested to await the outcome of his injuries. He gave the name of Giuseppe Delario.

Mary Cyrano, the woman's twelve-year-old sister, said Giuseppe had boarded with them a year ago, until his admiration for Mrs. Callejura made him more desirable than his company. Mrs. Callejura ordered him away, but the girl says he would hang about the place until Frank Callejura, a longshoreman, went to work, when he would beg for admission.

He saw Callejura leave the house at 6 o'clock this morning. Ten minutes later Giuseppe knocked at the door. He was slammed. He fell, claiming to be on the fire-escape and tried to force an entrance through the kitchen window.

Mary says her sister did not throw Giuseppe from the fire-escape into the yard. "That's what she said," she said. "I was excited at the prospect of forcing my way in that he slipped and fell. Before that happened my sister was on the way to the police station."

JAILERS FEAR BOY MURDERER.

Young Stewart Is Closely
Watched by Guards at Sing Sing.

Convict No. 248 at Sing Sing Prison is constantly shadowed by jailers. Extraordinary precautions are taken to see that he is given no opportunity to secure a weapon of any sort.

At night he is locked in a cell alone so that no hypnotic suggestion on his part may induce a calamity to him. For Convict No. 248 is Alexander Stewart, the fourteen-year-old boy murderer, who was sent to the prison Friday to serve twenty years for killing his playmate, Edward Peisel.

Already he has indignantly promised the guards and keepers to "do" them at the first opportunity. The boy's record shows that he is capable of carrying out his promises to "do" those he dislikes if the chance is given him.

Convict 248 is still an inmate of the institution ward, and because of the prevalence of typhoid will not begin active prison life for a week to come.

"He believes him to be a nut," is the explanation of the keepers. "True, he is only fourteen years old and weighs eighty pounds, but a sharp knife-driven with the force of his nervous arm and impelled by the lust for murder in his heart—would do as much mischief as if he were a 200-pound man."

The problem of the little convict's routine in Sing Sing is still unsolved. It was primarily intended to put him in the knitting department, that is the only work in the prison No. 248 is strong enough or large enough to do. This humane plan may be made impossible by the black humor of the boy, who has vowed to "do" his keepers.

He cannot work in the knitting department, what would he do? Years of inaction and killing murder that will surely drive him insane.

"There is a school in the prison," Stewart is bawled from. It is only for those prisoners who cannot read or write. Stewart says he can read and write.

Once a week he can go to church. The rest of the time he will have to pass in idleness, because he is intractable and incorrigible.

FORGER HAD CONSCIENCE.

Gave Himself Up After Robbing His Employer of $65.

A troubled conscience caused John E. Wright, colored, thirty-eight years old, to give himself up to Policeman Underhill early to-day. He said he had forged the name of Alexander Gaston, a brick manufacturer, of Matawan, N. J., and his employer, to a check for $65 on the Farmers and Merchants' Bank of that place.

He said he needed the money to pay debts, that this was his first offense and that he ran away before the check could be protested. His conscience troubled him so that he could not sleep and so he gave himself up to-day.

BOSTON TERRIERS OUT FOR MORE BLUE RIBBONS.

STAR BOY.

Kilmer Kennels' Pride Will Try to Repeat Their Former Successes

It is on the cards that the exhibits in the Boston terrier classes at the coming dog show in Madison Square Garden will have to display extraordinary merit to attract blue ribbons. The Kilmer Kennels, at Binghamton, N. Y., is in the lists with a pair that have thus far proven hard to outclass.

Star Boy and Button II. are Mr. Kilmer's prize pair, the same that scooped things at the Philadelphia bench. Button II. cost her owner $1,500 and has a pedigree as long and as illustrious as is possible for the product of a comparison.

With the pair Mr. Kilmer won at Philadelphia two firsts, a second and the Boston Terrier Novice Cup.
